
Subject: Re: The Pointsfix and the Game Listings
Posted by kadoosh on Sat, 10 Oct 2009 02:38:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Spoony wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 21:10

kadoosh wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 12:10 You post, or visit, a place you aren't welcome for what ever reason. People there generally don't like you, or the way you conduct your opinion pieces. You know for a damn fact your opinion is going to start a flame war there.

None of this constitutes fault on my part.

Imagine you play on a particular server and the regulars hate you for nothing more than the fact you always win, and let's assume you don't play unfairly in any way; you don't cheat, you abide by the rules and you don't talk shit to anybody. But everyone despises you because they can't stand losing and it's what always happens to them when you join.

Should you be criticised for this? Just because it freaks them out, does this put you at fault?

If the regulars hated me for what ever reason I would stay away from there. I'm not a drama hound. I don't go play places to see how many people I can piss off. If I know damn good and well that they hate me, and I join their server anyway and someone starts giving me shit, then Yes it IS my fault. I had the opportunity to avoid the situation and I did not. Skill level or not if you are Knowingly going into somewhere that you know you are going to be involved in some shit then yes you should stay away. If you go in then you are just as much at fault as the people giving you shit.

Quote:

kadoosh wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 12:10 As my example you chose to ignore, You walk into a Bar and try to tell them their lifestyles are wrong then wonder why you are on the verge of being barred from there.

Well, I don't think comparing the Jelly community to a gay bar is a particularly good analogy... a gay bar is probably friendlier.

While that seems kind of funny It is a relevant comparison. You go into the Jelly forums and basically tell them the way they play via the point system is wrong and the point fix is right. This is you telling them that their choices are wrong. This is instigating something. You know they don't like it and you do it anyway. You bring it on yourself. Is it justified? Hell I don't know I don't visit Jelly's forums to see what they say in response, BUT if you continue to do it knowing they are going to react that way then yes you are at fault.

Quote:

kadoosh wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 12:10 You put yourself at fault for putting yourself in the situation. If you need me to elaborate I will later.

see above re: a renegade server

Answered above re:re: a renegade server

Quote:

kadoosh wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 12:10 I'm starting to feel like a broken record here. You Entered an establishment you are not welcome in. They haven't banned you so you are able to do so. However you continuously post things that you know will agitate them. Pointsfix, something about CW.cc here or there that you know they don't care about or want to hear. This puts you at fault as you are the instigator.

Everyone else is always talking about the pointsfix. It's fairly rare I actually start the debate. I did start the recent thread about the ladder, but that's something that was totally new. As for talking about CW, clearshot started that - he wanted to make the ladder look bad somehow, so he made up a bunch of ridiculous lies about my history on clanwars.cc. I just caught him out.

Well, yes, I suppose if someone tries that kind of character assassination against you and you catch him red-handed, you probably will agitate him.

I never said anything specific about CW.cc. I just keep seeing people saying you talk about the points fix and CW.cc there. I don't know any of the situations you just said. I'm not getting involved in them.

Quote:

kadoosh wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 12:10 I know nothing of this so I won't even bother getting involved.

You kinda already did; "However you continuously post things that you know will agitate them. Pointsfix, something about CW.cc here or there that you know they don't care about or want to hear."

Way to take a broad comment and try to make it look like I know what the fuck you are talking about when it comes to CW.cc or anything else you talk about on jelly. That was a very dishonest move on your part there and not appreciated.

Quote:

kadoosh wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 12:10 As I said they will flame you there apparently for saying Hi. What makes you think they will read past title=Spoony and give 2 shits what you say? My best advise to you is stay away from there.

Thanks for the advice, I think I'll take it.

I hope for your mental sanity you do take it. It seems as though it's putting you under some unneeded stress.