
Subject: Re: GM Confirms 2011 Camaro Z28
Posted by CarrierII on Wed, 14 Oct 2009 10:33:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Dover wrote on Wed, 14 October 2009 10:34CarrierII wrote on Wed, 14 October 2009 01:39In (highly belated) response, no, I drive a Daewoo Matiz SE. (3 cylinders, 796 CC). I love it for the fact it's cheap to run, I can't afford a faster car. Not that the roads where I live allow you to drive fast, far too many sharp bends.

Do you really need a faster car, though? If I'm still getting speeding tickets in my little old Honda, then I'm going fast enough. I don't know how your Daewoo is, but I'm sure it's something similar to my Honda.

If you're the people behind me, I need a faster car.

According to a friend who's owned one, they can do 110 MPH if you try (That's nearly twice the legal limit on all but the really major roads round here) but then she's blown parts of the engine three times, so...

I can do sixty, but the acceleration is pitiful, which cause a lot of impatient drivers behind me to get annoyed. I also have no real power, so should I need to actually move something (tow a trailer or whatever) I probably couldn't.
