I have been checking this out a bit, and I found out that the w3d used in the PT background is just the regular background. So it is changeable. For the rest, I have succeeded in removing several items from the PT by changing their string names etc.

At this very moment I'm going to search the file for more interesting stuff using a more advanced resource hacker.