Is anyone here from the usa navy or air force or marines?

I wish to consider learning about maybe joining one day but a friend whos whole family has been in military for generations, like her dad for 28 years say never trust a recruiter, they say what you want to hear but once you join its not what you expected, she also said I could if i join the navy with her do to the boot camp and few months away form home and then go from being in the military hours a day every day what do you guys think? anyone here tell me what your experience was
