Personally, I can drink either or. They both have their ups and downs.

Coke is a bit more 'rough' textured. It feels more carbonated and has a sticky-sweet after taste.

Pepsi is more 'smooth' textured and less carbonated, meaning you're able to drink more of it before you start to feel bloated. (Gas buildup in your stomach)

I really don't care which one I drink, but if I had to chose, I'd pick Pepsi because it's taste is more vibrant than Coke's. Coke's taste is blocked a bit by it's carbonation, meaning you taste more bubbles than flavor.

But then again, that's just how it is in New York. When I took a vacation to the Dominican Republic, the Coke there was pretty smooth tasting.
