this is true, i think i meant to say clear instead of zell... oh well, i concede the point and appreciate the correction.

ZeLL wrote on Tue, 27 October 2009 06:07i never meant you was unfair as a player i meant there is absolutely no way everybody is going to agree with decisions you make not just now but in the future and i would not like to have to deal with it so id rather not just get involved in the first place ah, so you'd rather play somewhere where there ISN'T anybody looking out for fairplay at all?

ZeLL wrote on Tue, 27 October 2009 06:07how you've reacted is by acting like a baby and you ended up whining about why people wont defend you etc
i think you totally missed the point. i wasn't whining, i was posting a pretty serious critique of the clanwars community. they have a couple of pointpushers and rulebreakers going out of their way to stab an honest, fair player in the back who's done them nothing but favours, you have them telling lie after lie after lie to try to make them look bad... and people say nothing about this, indeed they criticise me for defending myself.
and if people say they're defending clear and simpee because they're under the impression (or misapprehension, in my view) that they're fair and honest players, then it's a pretty good question to ask why they didn't defend me when i was the one under attack, since my reputation of honesty and fairplay is better than clear and simpee's added together, and since what was being said about me was nothing more than a bunch of outright lies (whereas what i said against clear and simpee was true)

ZeLL wrote on Tue, 27 October 2009 06:07and you've gone onto other communities forums and still gone on about your view of what simpee and clear did for starters, what they did was ON ANOTHER COMMUNITY'S FORUM, so don't act like this is a strong argument.

no i meant drama involving pretty much like this, involving you making a decision which the community doesnt share and then there ends up being a huge fight on the forums and now your missing my point you have said what you needed to say about them breaking the rules but there was in all honesty no reason to keep repeating it mike simply stated he thought the league wouldnt be a proper league without simpee and clear as competition and he didnt think they should be considered cheaters and he just wanted the arguing to stop in the end you started wondering why he was defending them when all he was stating was an opinion which most people share on the forums, that they feel the league would infact be better off with these 2 as competition regardless of what they have done you saw it as some kind of defense and started moaning about why no one defended you as for this topic thing the topic was being argued on the jelly forums then eventually everybody seemed to have got tired of reading same stuff over and over again and gave up on it but now if you look you will find it is on clanwars.cc it is on exodus and it is on this forum(all this happened on the jelly forums yet you have continually put what happened in that topic on each of these forums and maybe more i havent checked any others).

i just find it ridiculous and childish to keep going on about it and i dont think an admin should really keep doing what you are doing
