Well, the average age of a US gamer is 35 years old, and seeing as XBL requires the use of a credit card for subscription, and decent income for games, I figured the average age of a Halo player would actually be in their mid-twenties. :/

35?

yeah, where'd you get that number? fairly interesting

This stuff came out a couple months ago. Still, they only had about like, 550-some subjects, and they didn't include people under 19, so the number is easily skewed upwards. But I'd say late twenties, early 30's would be the average age, even with people under 19 included.
