I don't see how it's appreciably different from any other kind of discussion.
"I HATE FISH!"
"WELL BUT I LIKE IT"
"YEAH THAT MAKES YOU A FAGGOT WITHOUT TASTE, K?"

I could list several things, but since I know from the last thread that you feel strongly about electronic music, I guess the most remarkable skill would be that they can actually play the music they make instead of sitting behind a computer or synthesizer and knocking shit together until they get something that sounds good then looping it for eight to fourteen minutes. I feel strongly about music. I dont particularly care for genres, albeit i admit that metal is among the few that i usually wont like. I also happen to listen to music that isnt electronic, so again, what skills do they have? actually playing their music is a trait that most bands offer, its nothing special. Its also funny how you seemingly completely disregard the writing aspect of music in favor of SKILL SKILL SKILL; "knocking shit together and looping it for 8 minutes". Wow, your knowledge of electronic music is amazing!

I'm elitest because I think music should require musicians and musical instruments? Lol, butthurt. Yes, you are elitist for having such an arbitrary definition of music that doesnt include the music YOU dont happen to like. And yes, i am so butthurt that i care enough to write 10 lines in bad grammar.
