that's totally not what happened. i didn't even know i was considered the captain, seeing as how i didn't sign clanwars up to this (i wasn't around at the time, remember). i wasn't under the impression that my personal opinion of whether clanwars forfeits or not was any more important than, say, hitman's. frankly, i was under the impression TD was the captain. he certainly didn't ask me if i wanted to be the captain; if he had i might have seriously considered doing so. he just decided that i was the captain without asking me. i don't accept that i was the captain at the point at which we "forfeited", and he's already admitted that, and i quote, he "should have known better".

GoTWhisKeY wrote on Fri, 04 December 2009 07:56 I hosted a clanwars server for years and never got a dime, along with countless others. I'm in the process of hosting my own official CW server as well, do I get any money then? Maybe i'm just being greedy though, cuz obviously those servers are an integral part of our league.

Personally I think the prize money should be used as prize money for the cw.cc ladder, or an internal cw.cc tournament like 1v1 rushmaps or something.

well, all i'll say is this; anybody could have revived the clanwars league like i just did while i was away. i really can barely afford to pay for the clanwars servers (had to take over a year off work to look after somebody, remember) but i do anyway, and if you recall i still said no to the idea of a SLAP-like system which would allow other servers (troop, c4u etc) to host clanwars, because i thought that for the good of the league it'd be better to host them myself. this is in spite of my dire financial situation.
