I posted that just saying how horrible I felt it was the times I played it, it felt more like a job than anything else. I was only giving my personal opinion. I know some people who are and were addicted to it, and it's pathetic.

I agree with addiction: it's a good game in my opinion, but if you cannot go several days without it then it's a problem.

And yes, a lot of the gameplay is lie a job, wha with questing and farming, but for me it contributes somewhat to the realism, and if it gets tedious I just find a few players to party with. I enjoy partying because we work together and combine our skills to take on more enemies than usual.
