I can understand that, what if the winners said that wanted 100 seperate payments made of a buck to different people. That would be pretty annoying to have to administrate... Plus, I guess it would sting a little for Crimson handing money over to Exodus (a point that was no doubt not lost on anyone when they made there decision to split the money).

I don't really care about that. However, it seems quite rude to ask me to go through the hassles of divvying up the prize I donated to multiple recipients.
