Like how it already looks just smaller?

Actually, I think this may be possible...

I would think just grab the different parts of the hud and scale them down, but keeping them in their designated area of the DDS file... Would also have to mess with the alpha channel which may be a lil more of a challenge. It would be hard to keep everything in line to fit together... as the hud_main DDS file rips the HUD into retarded sections.

Only think I could think of that may cause problems would the sizes of the numbers for the health and ammo would not change from the DDS.

Someone else correct me if I am wrong...
could you do this for me? i'm not much of a skinner.
