Im sure thats not what Westwood's purpose for those model's were. Why do people realse source models? For people to LEARN from...Not for people for peple to hold forthemselves.

If companys held the SDK and modkits for games to themselves do you think he game would be more popular?

I don't want this to continue every week a ack flame topic starts. Instead of saying "You n00b" or "You idiot" you oucl'd help people with there mods/models/map instead of saying its shit. That is driving people away.

You jsut made your first model that you spent hours on, you register up on the forums and post it and it get told its shit and basiclly quit modding(or the game) the community loses a potential contributor or mods.

I respect you as a modder but bot as a person, you pretty much cheated your way to the top and you push everyone else who wants to be DOWN.

And you start a flame war over silly thign s such as a simple typo or gramer error or someone who says MOD or NOD.
