not sure if that's the case but i think that's likely the truth shame to see you sitting out due to that though EWD; it could be fun if it goes well it could be hosted from a european server the next time it's done From my experience, Jelly servers are pretty bad for me in terms of lag. It could be that they changed something after I tried it, but still the distance will guarantee a minimal ping of 150ms, which I don't like.

Also, judging by what I've seen on our server, there are probably in the whole of the community about as much Euro as US players. In our server we happen to have a lot more euro than US players, but our server is Euro based.
