You might be surprised to learn that other Ren communities have done the same. Even worse was when they ignored the cheating because they stood to gain from the cheater's know-how.

How disillusioning. .

Hey, it's OK to run a double standard; that's been pretty normal around this joint for a while now. Just don't go calling out others, because there's plenty of dirt to go around.

Is this some kind of subtle reference to that Dead6re guy and his little incident?

As far as I know we dealt with Dead6re properly. As soon as we found out that he cheated we let everyone know, and when we found the backdoor he created we removed that piece of software from our webspace.

That's what I thought too. The whole thing seemed rather public and transparant, which is the reason I know about it at all in the first place.

Unless someone knows better than I do...?

There are others one could think off probably, but those persons are directly either loved by admins or admins...

Admins love all of us equally. <3
