Same EXACT header? Either that is one hell of a coincidence or they were made by the same person. I know you'll say header's need all that stuff but as a amateur webdesigner I know that from person to person it varies.

Hardly evidence, I also am a amature website designer. These of course are all basic html tags and the fact that they both flow the same way doesnt mean they are made by the same person. There is nothing that is normally customized here. On the other foot if there were meta tags for search engines etc that matched that would be different. Nice effort on the detective work but I dont think it constitutes much of anything.
