I suppose allot of people see the worst in eachother, so when something like this appears, people make assumptions? The guy who wrote that email is just mis-understood.

Some people may just enjoy seeing others downfall, and when they see something that could be deemed as contentious, they stir it up.

But the largest contributing factor in my opinion as to why people believe this is racist, is the media.

As to why we allow this kind of political correctness gone mad bullshit to carry on, in my pesimistic view is that really we're all slaves to the system and too frightened to fight it, as we know we'll get no back-up from all the other frightened sheep.

It's not that no one cares, we just know that the fight aint fair.
