

---

Subject: Re: Random Drug Testing

Posted by zeratul on Fri, 12 Mar 2010 04:40:09 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Glock~ wrote on Thu, 11 March 2010 22:11Um, are they even allowed seeing as how it's a public facility? I thought the only time you would be drug tested as if you were on parole that was subject to it or for a job. This seems really strange to me. It also doesn't seem right that they want to treat their students as common criminals without any prior evidence.

They do random class room searches with a drug dog as well many major Texas cities are also taking on random testing in that situation i'm sure its legal for them(even if it shouldn't)... some places around my area have accepted random tests as well. it does piss me off that we are interrupted for some stupid ass search of a room with no evidence but now random drug tests... i can barely pass as is but with the school on my ass *when this does happen* for nicotine in my blood (if they don't believe the second hand) my grades are fucked

Maybe school really is becoming prison

edit: Sentence Restructure

---