Actually, that is funny.

May I recommend force updating your DNS cache? You can do so by pressing start, type in cmd /k ipconfig /flushdns and right click run it and select run in admin mode.
On windows XP do start -> run -> type in: cmd /k ipconfig /flushdns -> enter

And it's doing that again... DNS was flushed, it stopped yesterday, started doing it again when I got on today.
Heh?
We didn't change anything. Yes our redirect broke, but that shouldn't have triggered FTP. Particularly because all request of to the (broken) apache server first and are then redirected to the FTP server.
Is this still happening now or?
