I played Savage last night. I found I didn't use most of the weapons and shit available. It's a little too RPG... the graphics are pretty cool except I kept finding when the sun moved some places would get too dark to see but I guess that's just supposed to be realistic.

I'll probably play it some more, and the fact that it's not Pay to Play is a big plus... and I'll DEFINITELY add it to n00bstories along with other games. Looks like a HUGE market for n00b behavior just like PlanetSide.

Some annoying bugs, like when you die (which happened to me a lot), the spectate doesn't work all that well.

I still think Renegade is better... complex in its simplicity. I think I had all the buildings down in Renegade a lot faster than I will in Savage. And the weapons in Renegade... there are no "spells"... just weapons that have purpose.

I'll reserve judgement, but it should be a popular game... the humans vs beasts never gets old.
