Ummm, I'm not really on anyone's side here. But trying to degrade someone for working at McDonalds while going to college is quite stupid. Anyone who has actually gone to college and got a degree knows that you can't have a real job and take 15-20 credits per semester. When you are in college, you should be poor as that what makes it fun. The funnest times in college are when you are dirt poor with your roommates. If everyone worried about making riches while in college, they would never graduate as it would consume their lives.

I also hope that those of you who are degrading Xpert for working at McDonalds, better have their own careers and are not living at home under their momma's and daddy's paycheck. If you have the audacity to degrade someone for being poor (by your standards) you should be able to back it up with your own overachieved resume. Since it's the time of year were we have to file taxes, lets see some W-2 forms (or Canadians equivalent T9 forms) so you can add some credibility to your claims. If the forms are legitimate, we can try and convince Crimson to change your title on the forms to "Fabulous".
