Taking the piss out of someone for working is retarded. A job is a job and I respect anyone for working while attending uni. People who study simply cannot have a full time job, I myself work part-time and am currently obtaining my degree. Additionally McDeeZ has been voted within The Times Top 100 Employers for some time now, which like it or not is a creditable and referancable list in academic material. They are a great employer and many people have attained very successful carreers there.

That's about it, don't hate on people for getting up off their ass and working. The only valid reason for hating people is if they're French.

Agreed with this post 100%.
