15:05Can I just ask one question: what is banning him going to do?

It's been answered. The Renegade community should make him unwelcome- why he's remotely welcome in the first place is just beyond me.

Ethenal wrote on Tue, 18 May 2010 15:05From my point of view, nothing but give him a reason to have animosity towards us. He rarely posts here to begin with.

So the Renegade community should be afraid of some douche who makes cheats and refuses to STOP making them? It's not like kissing his ass would do anything except make his already shitty personality even shittier.

Ethenal wrote on Tue, 18 May 2010 15:05And if I recall, he took the actual [anti-cheat forum refuses to allow me to name] hook out of the cheat in question a long time ago, and even explained to the RG team how to block RGH. They just never, you know, did it.

Good for him, but that doesn't redeem the fact that he, you know, refuses to stop making cheats.

It's not a nice option for players here that feel his presence is an insult to them, but it's not like the community here have allot of options (if any) to deal with 0x90 and his releases.

Apparently, some of the higher ups already do accept him. Spoony and I are just saying he shouldn't be. We don't owe him one fucking thing. He owes us TONS, to repair the damage he's done.

I'm not saying at all that these attacks on Spoony are right because I infact strongly disagree with them, but I'm just thinking that there really isn't much to be gained from banning 0x90. However, I'm beginning to see he seems to post here more often, so I don't know.

Also, with the part of him telling the RG team how to block it-that-must-not-be-named, I was just referencing the fact that nobody did anything about it. And I don't believe that we should be afraid of him, but since we're not in the position to defend the game from his cheats, there's no reason to encourage more attacks. Alas, I would gladly attempt to block it if I knew how, but unfortunately I do not have the time nor the skills to do that, and because of that I understand the predicament we're in.
