We've heard that you have this fantastic anti-cheat, yet none of us have seen it in action.

I completely understand the principle that real life prevails over online gaming, and I stand by it every single time.

I also understand you've suffered some complications with this project, but does it seriously take years to create something, that probably by the time you release it, nobody that's active now will be able to benefit from it?

All I can say is, I look forward to you releasing this - but I won't be holding my breath.
