Reasons, proof and credibility aside, it just seems that almost everyone who claims to play for exodus just posts here to whine about some cheater or some ban or some forum permissions or something.

I used to play on that server; even if it was only for like 1 or 2 months. I thought the server was nice. But they just take everything so seriously and whine about everything. It really turned me away from playing there.

What? The only time i've ever posted remotely seriously was my original post what started this thread. That's because Azazel is this huge moron who used to bash Exodus for banning him, we were proven right.

He personally insulted me and Flamin over our running of the RGCT2 and allegations over a certain player.(who was proven innocent btw)

He's acted like this religious anti-cheating zealot when he was cheating himself.

Most people in Exodus, Jelly and other communities have laughed at how this village idiot got caught. I merely posted it here so people who weren't members of those communities would see it aswell.

I'm so sorry if funny things like that seem so serious to you =/
