I don't quiet understand it but from having played this game for the past couple of years, I feel that something about being good at sniping really appeals to some players. Thing is there are relatively few genuine players who are good at doing this leaving a lot of wannabees wanting to be in their shoes right away. Reason? There's definitely some self satisfying ego/respect they seem to out of it [the cheaters I mean].

There are so many people cheating today using these methods. The new ones who cheat get caught fast since they make it obvious while the smart ones know when to cheat and when not to...and the honest players get the receiving end of these folks and have to wait for incidents like these and similar to what happened to masterb8s (Imfao) to get justice.
