
Subject: Re: Pirate Party to Run Pirate Bay from Swedish Parliament

Posted by Dover on Mon, 19 Jul 2010 09:35:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

CarrierII wrote on Mon, 19 July 2010 01:25 Small time gigs in bars / clubs are OK, but points at the fact I live in the UK Coldplay or U2 gig tickets are easily £300 ($550, roughly) or more - and all the live recordings I've seen of gigs from big-name bands just seem to consist of noise from the crowd, rather than the instruments on stage.

That must suck. I saw Muse at the Oracle Arena which isn't Wembely or anything, but isn't small at all, and it was less than $40. Who the hell would pay $500 to see shitty Coldplay?

Actually, I take my previous statement back. I saw Queen when they were doing their + Paul Roger tour and I think I might have spent like $50 for that.
