He could just apologized immediately. When he was crusading against cheaters, his posts were well written and he fooled everyone into thinking he is a responsible person.

Sure he would have been bashed but he could have had the chance to come back and play many months from now. Now he is only ruining his own reputation (or what's left of it if there is any left).

seems obvious he likes the game. So he returns with a new nick. The "I bought it off of some guy from Amazon" was funny lol. He should have just apologized. It is still not too late really imo though others will definitely disagree.
