Conclusive proof, you're dodging him.

No one was looking for a game, his brain doesn't function correctively because he does not have the cognitive ability to rebut anything with conversation so he has to challenge people to one versus one... which literally solves nothing. It's probably a side-effect of the multiple physical beatings he recieved as a child. Where if he didn't get to bed early enough his father would challenge him to a 1v1. He would immediately retreat to his covers out of fear. Ever since then it is his only way of dealing with problems.
