Finished watching both videos, pretty nice stuff for someone watching that might still be new to RenX and all the tools. The quality of the video was a bit tough to follow, even if I maximized the window and set the quality to 480, I had to squint at some times when you were talking about a tool, or when you were clicking your mouse on something (You clicked on tools really fast sometimes). But I got the feeling if I watch the video maybe 3-4 more times carefully I'll understand what's going on.

Useful to see how things are done by 'experienced' people. You said in the video you might make a tutorial on how to make the 'undo' function go to unlimited, would be a nice thing to know.

Sweet stuff. Kudos for making it.
