I have a HP... it is a POS, it would do better as a fucking griddle as hot as it gets. It's a miracle that it has not caught fire or combusted...

I have an old Toshiba, it has been to hell and back, but it still works fine. It doesn't seem to ever get half as hot as the HP.

Also have a Gateway, had it for a while but have not used it much due to the charger outlet breaking. It seemed like a decent laptop before it broke.

Every laptop I have had though has had problems with the chargers/outlets either breaking or shorting out.
