C&C: Continuum was going to be an MMORPG. It was gonna have some pretty awesome shit from what I recall, but it got trashed along with the rest of Westwood's projects (Renegade 2, C&C: Incursion (AKA C&C3)).

A C&C MMO would be great, but if it were made by EA... God, it'd be Lord of the Rings Online and Dragonball Online and Star Wars Galaxies and every other MMORPG that everyone wanted but failed so fucking hard and fell into the cliché bullshit that fills up every other MMORPG all over again.

If EA would make a proper MMORTS then it could be completely totally awesome. Think of TS world domination but then with an near endless map with the possibility to ask for reinforcements on the fly (extra commanders). This could create an awesomely dynamic almost real life like war environment. Would possibly take quite some computing power, but I guess they'll just have to cut back on the ridiculous lasers and overdone explosions.
