Well, Ren was the first game ever that I actually played online and soon many of the people I played with became friends. So I tried to preserve all the memories and became an SS-addict. I do have thousands of SS (organized by year/month) and they do take up space but I have a nice external HDD where I put all that and keep it all organized. For Ren, it is absolutely worth it.

edit:

Spoony wrote on Fri, 05 November 2010 16:02a medhavoc is also nowhere near as good as a lightsak, but then it surprises me how few people seem to've noticed (8 years in) what absolute buckets of sex light tanks are on cityfly... definitely the best thing available for either team on that map.

btw, I have always wanted to tell you. I have this n00bish urge to be in a fully repaired vehicle at all times. I get very uneasy even if a few health/armour is missing. But you get around with light/saks easy and even if you took damage, you still stay put holding your position and hitting buildings. I can't seem to do that.
