it's clanwars nobody plays anymore hitman, i don't know why you have a hard time getting that point the right way up.

so what do people play? publics, commwars, and these lobbywar type games. publics i'm obviously a great deal better than simpee; did you see him say that a clanwars "pro" can only have a big effect in a public server on a flying map? really? we've also established the enormous gap in leadership abilities - hitman and simpee say they don't care enough to do that. well, make that excuse if you like, but i've yet to be told why someone who doesn't try to help the team out should be considered best playa.

i'll add that i didn't say "i get MVP all the time", to which you seem to've reduced my comments.

commwars, then. same thing only more so, isn't it? i don't see simpee organising teams of people who've never played community matches before and leading them to the point where they put up a strong fight against communities like jelly who've played more community wars than anybody.

finally lobbywars. remember those random-team games with you, mike and tunaman, whiskey? think you and mike won maybe half of your games, i won all except one. we did some more the other day with i0n and hypnos, played maybe 15 games over two sessions, i won all except one. i've always been at least a match for simpee in clanwars despite the fact he's always played fanatically more often than i did (see the period when i revitalised the league after not playing for a year, whereas he never stopped. and before that i was more of an admin than a player, as you know) i also haven't heard an answer to my earlier question - are honesty and fairplay worth consideration in this matter? we play in an era of undetectable cheats. nobody who knows what they're talking about ever accused me of cheating; plenty of people think simpee did. secondly, i can't be the only person to notice what a pathologically compulsive liar he is. seriously, he's one of the most dishonest people this game has ever seen. i just can't be the only person to've noticed. if you don't think these things are worth considering, then i invite you to say so. it looks that way so far. at least a few people's skill level will drop dramatically once the anti-cheat is out; i think you know mine won't.

(as an aside, whiskey, do you remember how many people kept changing the subject to BR and uded because it pained them too much to admit kill was the best player at the time? perhaps you can see where i'm going with that)

so there you go... he's nothing remarkable at all in publics or commwars (which are the games people actually play), maybe about equivalent to me in clanwars if you want to talk about games nobody plays anymore, and with the added bonus that i can actually be trusted...
