As such, two people with opposing opinions are encouraged to post in this section.

While it might be true that winning or losing such debate on a website like this probably won't have any effect on the grander stance on the issue, that does not mean that it can't or shouldn't be discussed here period.

Saying that this is no place to discuss such a topic is merely a way of implying you don't want to argue anymore. As such, you no longer want to defend your position. But, since you also don't want to admit defeat on the issue, you're continuing to participate in the conversation.

Moral of the story: Don't enter an argument that you have no intention of finishing.

It was more of a "relativity" issue. I didn't mean it was pointless, although I came off that way. Well said.
