A match isn't over until the end-game scoreboard shows up. Any time before that, anything can happen. I don't care if the enemy has their entire base left while we only have a no-power base defense structure and no credits. Until they make the final blow, the game is still on.

It isn't about "whoring" points by repairing, it's about trying to think of a way to pull a miracle come-from-behind attack in those losing moments. I absolutely cannot stand the short-attention span people who get bored and hinder everyone else from trying to continue the game because they want to play the next map.

Agreed, but this is renegade.

you will see:

Harvey whores
Repair whores (the non productive ones)
N00bjet Sniper Whoring off basic infantry
SBH's who don't do anything

but whats why its all the more fun
