

---

Subject: Re: Duke Nukem Forever

Posted by EvilWhiteDragon on Wed, 27 Apr 2011 21:08:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Spyder wrote on Wed, 27 April 2011 21:45GEORGE ZIMMER wrote on Wed, 27 April 2011 21:08Spyder wrote on Wed, 27 April 2011 06:16

I'll stick with usenet, it's cheaper. Besides that, I'm not going to spend any money on a game which I will probably not play anymore after completing the campaign. you know, I hate being the moralfag in situations like this, but goddamn you are the reason why game companies hate developing for the PC.

By the way, there's tons of legitimately free games- are you that much of an asshole that you feel you deserve other games for free?

I own a PS3 too and I do buy games for that. PS3 games are priced at 67 euros here and that's quite a lot. That's the main reason I don't buy PC games, because I'd rather spend it on a PS3 game for which I can unlock trophies, which kind of force me to play until I have them all.

So I do support game companies, but not with games like CoD, Crysis 2, Battlefield etc. Games like those are way too overpriced for what they actually give you in the end in my honest opinion. Steam achievements.

They even where there before the PSN was there.

Phailstation 3...

Not to mention buying expensive games for the Phailstation while the same game on PC is around 40 euros or lower if you look carefully.

---