Some people can't comprehend that so just instantly shout cheater.
try playing on pubs

I do quite a lot... you can tell a cheater straight away due to gun movement and their shooting pattern... there are a few but never too many to still enjoy the game.

Just watch their gun movement, good snipers use free aim, and will kill the greater threat first. For example a havoc over a tib sydney.

Exactly....good snipers will kill you at a certain point in a good fight normally, while cheaters will kill you when they shouldn't even be shooting at you, or don't have a chance to kill you without them. It's all about patterns really, when cheat detecting.

I personally think that people still say there are way more cheaters than there really are....it's the ones that you've never heard of that are randomly good, or the ones that got good overnight that you have to keep an eye on....not so much the more experienced players anymore.....with the exception of 1 or 2.
