1.) I got CCENT certification a while back if that's what your talking about, no idea about the pay though.

2.) What I'd recommend the most is installing Linux on one of your machines, getting a VPS, or even a dedicated server to learn on. Books are great but you need to apply your knowledge. Let me know if you want an account on one of my boxes to screw around in. I have BSD boxes too, if you're interested.

Haha, just noticed the date. Sorry for the bump, I didn't realize this was such an underactive area in the forum so I thought it'd be newer.
