While it is normally true that you can NOT make EVERYONE happy, it still makes sense to try to appeal to the majority when providing a service of any sort...

Crimson, probably doesn't feel the need to do as she has a "monopoly" of sorts on the Renegade related forum business. Now really we should just be glad that we don't actually pay for such service, as I imagine most would just go without. Yes she pays the bills, so she can do what she wants... but that is still not a very good way to go about business when providing service of any sort.

Kinda like America's government, yes Obama got the most votes so he is President... seems like it was our choice, but now he has the power to fuck us with shit like "Obama care"... Luckily for us we can get rid of him in 2012. Sadly we can not vote for someone else to provide us with a decent forum to gather at.

In short, you should appeal to the majority... Unless they have nowhere else to go, in that case fuck'em dry in the ass.

Maybe we are "butt-hurt?"
