And not to mention that the Ramjet is not just for sniping infantry...the Rene manual says it's an anti-material rifle that fires a rocket-engined round; hence the blue exhaust (tracer). Makes no sense that I can't damage flying eggshells with it.

I have no problems with the default system in stock Renegade but if anyone want to test it, a more realistic modification would be to reduce Ramjet damage/effectiveness in the context of range (against light armour only). So a Ramjet vs an Orca that is way far off would take much lesser damage than when it is directly overhead. This way I don't have to deal with having to force my mind to doublethink on Fjords.
