"These Rules of Conduct have been agreed upon by the administration, and are subject to change at any time. Any changes made or required due to an unanticipated action by a forum member may be acted upon immediately and without warning at the discretion of the Administration."

Learn to read you dumb bitch, I'll point it out for you:

1. You need to change the rules of conduct first. Which you haven't done.
2. Changes that have to be made because of UNANTICIPATED actions can be in effect immediately. Only those.
3. Positng on behalf of a banned user earns you a warning at first, which didn't happen yet.

I'm still considering the appropriate phrasing for the rule clarification. But I'm not going to hold off the ban while there's more important things to worry about. Don't tell ME how to interpret my own rules.

In addition, "killgeak" who started this thread technically posted on behalf of a banned user, but since he doesn't have the seniority (and therefore should know better) as Dave and the post wasn't inflammatory and abusive, I was lenient on him.

iRANian wrote on Sun, 13 November 2011 16:18Considering you don't seem to care a fuck about randomly banning people Spoon-style, why have the rules of conduct in the first place?

I'm not sure what the Spoony reference is for, but the ban wasn't random.

iRANian wrote on Sun, 13 November 2011 16:18Also it's pretty sad you're denying hacking Exodus and stealing Devitto's S2 forum nick or whatever it was.

I didn't hack Exodus... lol. I remember being accused of it before but I don't remember what it was all about. And stealing an S2 forum nick? This again implies I know how to hack passwords? If only I were that good at "hacking". I'm much better at defending from attacks/floods/exploits since that happens to me a lot.

iRANian wrote on Sun, 13 November 2011 16:18I still haven't seen any evidence of MUDKIPS UDP flooding n00bstories server, but please show me the packet logs.

There won't be any evidence of something that no one claimed happened. He flooded the server by joining dozens of times over and over. He admitted to this in the thread that you are apparently not reading.
