I guess I'm a little disappointed to learn that st0rm has been taken off the xwis game listings, as I have never liked connecting to a renegade server via a 3rd party client. I never used to like st0rm server, i always disliked how it was heavily modified. Prior to scripts 4.0 release, i was on a break from renegade. I got sick of the lack of teamwork (which is what i miss in renegade from the early days) and people wanting to just arty whore all game, making every game the same.

I followed scripts 4.0 development, and when scripts 4.0 was released , st0rm was the only mainstream server to utilise them. So i decided to play there. Also wanting to play Fjords was appealing too. When i joined, i found that a lot of the stupid modifications were removed, a couple remained. But mods such as the veteran system proved to be fresh and fun during those long marathon games, and there actually was a lot of teamwork in the majority of games, with lots of good players. Games were highly enjoyable. Now it's gone, I'm not sure what server to play in, namely one that uses scripts 4. Jelly has always been the alternative, but it's always been slightly laggy for me, and there seems to be alot of n00bs that arty whore all game, with little teamwork.

I have no care for all this drama...yes wilo is an ass for what he did, and i understand he has pissed off heaps of people. But it would seem some people here are getting angry at others that haven't done anything.

What i care for is just playing a good game of renegade, and i really think, especially renegade being 10 years old and how many of us are left, this entire community should really band together, and try and run things simultaneously. Not be so divided.

just my 2 cents, sorry for the essay.
