

---

Subject: Re: St0rm "Truth"

Posted by Zeglcosp on Sat, 03 Mar 2012 21:09:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I've been on and off at St0rm for years, most recently returning a few months ago to find Renegade not very interesting (which it never really was, just always fun to play with people you liked), and since most of these people were gone, and listening to dozens of grown men flirt with the few girls that play here isn't really my thing, I left again.

I heard about what was going on through some members that I've been friends with for a while, and I don't agree with what Will did, and won't be returning.

The only thing that affects me about this is that I will lose means of communication with a few people I consider friends at St0rm and I'm sorry to those people, but I can't support Will and his choices made recently that are actions similar of a 5 year old tainting the neighboring lemonade stand's lemonade in order to get more customers. There comes a level of immaturity that is just sad, as when I first met him 6 or 7 years ago he was more mature than he is now.

To those people I leave behind I'll leave my steam ID, so I hope we can stay in touch. Best of luck, hope all turns out well for everyone, and enjoy the ride.

Steam : ZEGLCOSNP

Posted to St0rm forums but thought I'd share here too so that MDK can find some reason to start another fight.

Also liquid, St0rm's been hating on Jelly for a long time because (from my perspective) someone said something a few years ago and I believe the "bandwagon onto higherup's opinions" attitude snowballed to most people there just having a bad attitude about your server or players. I don't like how rude some of the members on Jelly were, there were equal amount of trolls on each server, something we can't control and I respected the manner most of the staff on all servers conducted themselves. I don't have anything against your server.

---