I didn't even play the OS games but my experience is that is you play 8v8 where 4 players on one team are using cheat name removed you might as well not bother.

You can't argue that you can out tank them because you can't repair your tank without getting hs... you can't get in their base and hide.

I'm sorry but OS were a piece of shit, I'm sure they knew a fair bit but used to beat em 5 out of 5 in 2v2, with thier rgh.

In regards to the main argument, you can learn to tank and aim in public to high standards, you can't learn what to do and the perfect time to do it and that makes someone good, nothing else.

Aiming comes with time.
