those games vs OS were just casual for most of the clan war players which goes a long way in explaining why after killing the ref on canyon 7/10 people bought havocs and went tunnel. I'm sure the result would have been different if someone at the time had said that 5 years later those games would be used to judge the skill level of clan wars.

I am surprised so many people remember these games, until people started talking about them I didn't even know I played.

I remember trying to glitch out of the map so I could snipe the air... and actually trying for a few minutes with a pic too.
