ehh's logs there just show how aggressive joe can be with his powers. Fair enough he was testing joe slightly but that can't be said for the rest of us who just defend ourselves and get muted because joe can't either take a joke or take the fact that people (like myself) will stand up to him.

Fortunately Crimson i have better things to do than "troll moderators" so please don't include all of us into your little charade. There are times in game where i will be just chatting with someone i haven't seen in a while or whatever and joe will butt in and say something smart, i in response will crack a joke at his response or outwit him (which isn't hard) and i will get muted. I never get personal with him and he either can't take a joke or craves starting and ending arguments by using and abusing his powers.

Just thinking back to one of my first mutes (so see if this is fair). i said i was from Compton to a guy in noobstories who happened to go to a university nearby in LA, later on an irish guy from Jelly (Toad) joined the game. i then said i lived in ireland (which i do) to which joe says "oh my relatives are from the city of Shannan in ireland". i correct him by telling him there is no such city (which there isn't) so he takes offence saying "how would you know, first your from compton, now your from ireland, choose a place already" he then proceeds to mute me and tells me he's not in the mood for my shit. i would like to know how that is deemed a mute and how fair that is please!

This is my last post on this topic because it's going nowhere and blatantly obviously nothing is going to change.
