Sorry but X-men is part of a different fictional universe to the avengers, which was indeed awesome.

At least to my understanding it is.

Not due to comic book knowledge but knowledge that X-men and the avengers are owned by different studios.

They exist in the same Marvel universe, and often cross over. They have whole volumes dedicated to it. Wolverine was in fact an Avenger at some point.

My understanding was that due to the different movie studios that own the rights to each film, then spiderman, x-men and one other? are in different fictional universes to the others.

I'm sure they cross over within the comics.

Maybe I misunderstood what I read.
