Wallywood wrote on 19 February 2012 - 05:48 PM Right now I'm working as a sales man in a trade shop. Kind of awesome because we get all sorts of great old-school stuff coming in like working first Gen Nintendo systems and Sega stuff. Also I get a discount on everything. Seeing as the place is a video game heaven, my job is awesome

Hi I'm nearly 28 and I work at GameStop. My only ambition in life so far is to get beaten up for money. Now that I'm too fucked up to continue being beaten up for money, I've settled for being beaten up by retail managers to sell shitty scratch protection service plans on video game discs. I don't have a college degree, and I majored in wood shop in high school. I'm completely capable of running a mod that's been dead for an entire decade.
