Do you go out much? Do you have a career, or even a decent job to support yourself? Or do you live with your parents?

/Honest answers only, please

//Internet people always lie

I never thought that what you thought of me mattered. again someone randomly linked this on the Exodus network, and I just became curious about the whole trolling thing.

Obsessed? Random posting on a forum in response to you is hardly obsessed, again just curious. If you want to talk obsessed, it seems you and wallywood have a thing for each other.

Also, since you asked nicely I will answer those questions.

I am a college student, majoring in computer science. I work at my school as a peer tutor for computer science classes. I am pretty much working towards having a career. I don't get what you mean by "going out much", I am busy with study groups and other things most of the time. Trying to get at least a 3.2 or even a 3.5 GPA before transferring schools! Also, I am living with my parents now, however this might be changing in the near future, once I transfer.

Not all internet people lie to make friends. That's a pretty sad outlook to have about people online. Also, if all internet people lie, does that mean you are lying about that whole pretending to be a girl thing being a troll?
